Food For Thought

- ♥ According to the 2010 census, for every 100 single adult women in the United States, there are only 88 single men.
- ♥ According to a CNN report, for the first time in American history there are more single women than married women in the United States.

In John T. Malloy's book Why Men Marry Some Women and Not Others, he details a number of important characteristics of women who found husbands:

- ♥ They had at least seven single female friends and a large number of female friends who were willing to help them meet men.
- ♥ The women who went out at least two nights a week—even if it was simply out to dinner or to do volunteer work with friends—were three times more likely to get married than those who stayed at home.

We created our DIY Matchmaking Club to help women get the most out of being single and to increase their odds of meeting great men! Our club is a lively social group with education and friendship at its core.
